

Progress Monitoring Probe 5

The Coolest Game

Any game that's played on a frozen surface is bound to be cool, but hockey is cool in the other sense of the word. It's an exciting game played at lightning speed by two teams that consist of six players each. A team wins a hockey game by scoring more goals than its opponents.	12 26 36 48 54
The players use wooden sticks that curve at the bottom to move a rubber disk called a puck across the ice and into a net to score a goal. One player on each team serves as a goalie and is responsible for protecting the team's goal. Players wear padded uniforms and helmets, mouth guards, and ice skates with blades specially made for the sport.	65 80 94 103 113 118
In hockey, the action never stops. Referees and other officials monitor the action, while players keep the game moving and try to avoid penalties. A hockey rink is marked with red and blue lines and circles that show different playing zones.	127 137 150 159
No one knows for certain exactly how hockey originated, but the game most likely developed as a version of "stick and ball" games played on land in Europe for hundreds of years. British soldiers in eastern Canada first began playing ice hockey in the middle of the nineteenth century. By the end of the century, women had begun playing the sport, too.	169 181 192 203 214 221
Hockey rules, mainly based on the game of rugby, were written in the latter part of the nineteenth century. The rubber ball originally used in the game evolved into a block of wood and later into a hard rubber disk known as a puck.	231 242 254 265
Interest in the game of hockey spread quickly. With the invention of the first indoor rink of artificial ice, the sport caught	275 287

The Coolest Game (Continued)

on in the United States. Early in the twentieth century, professional teams and leagues were formed.	297 303
Today there are professional teams all over the United States and the world. More people are playing and watching hockey than ever before. It's fast, colorful, and thrilling. In other words, hockey is one of the coolest sports around!	313 323 334 342

Total words: _____ – errors: _____ = words correct: _____

The Coolest Game

Any game that's played on a frozen surface is bound to be cool, but hockey is cool in the other sense of the word. It's an exciting game played at lightning speed by two teams that consist of six players each. A team wins a hockey game by scoring more goals than its opponents.

The players use wooden sticks that curve at the bottom to move a rubber disk called a puck across the ice and into a net to score a goal. One player on each team serves as a goalie and is responsible for protecting the team's goal. Players wear padded uniforms and helmets, mouth guards, and ice skates with blades specially made for the sport.

In hockey, the action never stops. Referees and other officials monitor the action, while players keep the game moving and try to avoid penalties. A hockey rink is marked with red and blue lines and circles that show different playing zones.

No one knows for certain exactly how hockey originated, but the game most likely developed as a version of "stick and ball" games played on land in Europe for hundreds of years. British soldiers in eastern Canada first began playing ice hockey in the middle of the nineteenth century. By the end of the century, women had begun playing the sport, too.

Hockey rules, mainly based on the game of rugby, were written in the latter part of the nineteenth century. The rubber ball originally used in the game evolved into a block of wood and later into a hard rubber disk known as a puck.

Interest in the game of hockey spread quickly. With the invention of the first indoor rink of artificial ice, the sport caught on in the United States. Early in the twentieth century, professional teams and leagues were formed.

Today there are professional teams all over the United States and the world. More people are playing and watching hockey than ever before. It's fast, colorful, and thrilling. In other words, hockey is one of the coolest sports around!
